

Alibaba, part of planned Taiwan fund, won't seek board seats at local firms - source

Alibaba Group Holding, which is awaiting regulatory approval for a $45 million fund it is participating in, has promised the Taiwanese government it will not take board seats at local firms the fund invests in, a source with direct knowledge of the matter said.

The fund is being raised by China Development Financial Holding (CDF), one of the island's biggest financial holding firms, and the Chinese e-commerce giant is planning to take a 29.99 percent stake.

The deal has yet to be approved by Taiwan's Investment Commission despite an application three months ago, Alibaba founder Jack Ma (left) and other members of the Taiwan Entrepreneur Fund announced in 2015 but which has not yet been approved by Taiwan's Investment Commission.

It follows a $300 million

Chinese warships led by China's sole aircraft carrier sailed north through the Taiwan Strait. Other business deals have been affected. In November, Taiwan's ChipMOS Technologies said it scrapped a planned $373 million stake sale to China's Tsinghua Unigroup due to uncertainty about Taiwanese regulatory clearance, the second deal in eight months involving Unigroup and a firm in the island to fall through. The source, who declined to be identified due to the sensitivity of the subject, said Alibaba's investment plans offered benefits to Taiwan startups. "Alibaba can offer Taiwan entrepreneurs assistance to enter markets not only in China but in Southeast Asia as well," said the source. The commission said that it was appropriate to take a more cautious approach to investments from China. We welcome foreign investments, and Chinese investments in principle as well," said Emile Chang, the commission's executive secretary. "But the review process is stricter." Other investors in the fund include Quanta Computer, a supplier of Apple Inc, and Far EastOne Telecom.

BD India and Zydus Hospitals join hands to support safe insulin injection practices

BD India and Zydus Hospitals officials at a meeting to discuss insulin injection practices.

According to current studies, 69.2 million Indians are affected with diabetes. By 2030, the prevalence of diabetes among Indians is projected to reach 87 million. Insulin is the mainstay of treatment in diabetes and about 3.2 million Indians depend on insulin injections for the management of diabetes. With time, majority of people with type 2 diabetes eventually need insulin therapy for the optimal control of glucose levels. All people living with type 2 diabetes are recommended intensive insulin therapy. However, incorrect technique of injecting insulin may increase the risk of poor glycaemic control and prevent people on insulin from adherence to therapy - leading to sub-optimal clinical outcomes. Japan postpones launch of mini rocket Japan's space agency postponed on Wednesday the launch of a mini rocket that will put a satellite into space because of strong wind, an agency spokesman said.

The Japan Aerospace Exploration Agency (JAXA) had planned to launch the SS-520 rocket, which is about 10 metres (35 feet) long and 50 centimetres (20 inches) in diameter, at its Uchinoura Space Center in southern Japan, early on Wednesday. The rocket, which media has called the world's smallest space rocket, will carry a 3-kg (6.6 lb), 35-centimetre (14 inches) satellite, which will take images of the earth and gather other data.

The agency has not decided when it would try to launch the rocket again. The spokesman said it would usually take at least two days to reschedule a launch.

The rocket was built with 400 million yen (2.8 million pounds) from the trade ministry. Private firms paid for various parts, the spokesman said.
