Public toilets with good water facility are the need of the hour

Vinod Chandrashekar Dixit
Free-lance Journalist, Writer & Cartoonist
(dixitpratkar@yahoo.in)

Ahmedabad, It is estimated that 2.5 billion people around the world do not have proper sanitation, that 1.1 billion people defecate in the open and that providing toilets could save the lives of more than 200,000 children each year. Sanitation is a global development priority. Diarrhoea caused by poor sanitation and unsafe water kills 315,000 children every year. Open defecation, unlike in other places, where it has a negative connotation, here it is something that is completely normal, and even sometimes wholesome, like the fact that you have gone for a morning walk, and you have exercised your body and you have gotten up early. Lack of access to toilets has been identified as a huge problem, particularly in rural. It not only spreads diseases like diarrhoea but also exposes women to the risk of sexual assault when they go into the fields after dark. Cultural norms are hard to change and according to some, open air defecation is seen as more sanitary by those who prefer to relieve themselves in the open rather than share a toilet. Disease transmission at work mostly caused by poor sanitation and hygiene practices, causes 17% of all workplace deaths.

In a country like India it is very difficult and takes a long time to change the practice of open defecation in rural areas. Most of the toilets which are started for public use are being neglected by the people due to improper maintenance. It is the matter of hygiene that can attract more people to use toilet.

India is racing to build toilets by 2019 for 60 million people or roughly half the population which lacks access to sanitation. Prime Minister Narendra Modi has put it high on the national agenda, but the challenge could be daunting in a country where defecating in the open is a common sight and is accepted by many as normal. Our PM has already pledged to provide access to a toilet at every school and home in the country by 2019, the 150th anniversary of Mahatma Gandhi's birth. His campaign, called Clean India, means the government will have to build 60 million toilets in that timeframe. So far, about 9.5 million toilets have been built, according to the Indian Ministry of Water and Sanitation.

It is surprising that the E-toilets installed in the city are not maintained properly. It is the malodour that discourages people from using public toilets. Most of the public toilets are not usable because of lack of cleanliness, electricity and water. As no efforts are taken by the local bodies to maintain them, e-toilets remains in poor condition. It is also observed that the toilets have no proper water supply and are badly maintained. It is a grave health issue. With many people coming to work daily the public toilets should be of use to the local as well as floating population a daily commuter to the city. There should be a monitoring system to put in place to check the maintenance of e-toilets. Only an indoor toilet is dry and clean, something. Educated or uneducated, people in rural areas, for want of indoor plumbing use open space for defecating. There are people who think that open defecation is more hygienic and having an indoor toilet is dirty and filthy. We need a grass root campaign on how many diseases can be avoided by basic cleanliness and how spending on toilets is as important as developing other infrastructure. We don't need to build new temples, mosques, churches, gurudwaras etc. Public toilets with good water facility are the need of the hour. Bringing about a change in mindset is the paramount need.

Modi's approach is to use improved sanitation as a tool to combat poverty, develop the economy, and make India more attractive to business investment. The proposition is not an easy one: 'Half of India's population, at least 620 million people, defecates outside. Toilets play a crucial role in creating a strong economy, as well as improving health and protecting people's safety and dignity, particularly women's and girls'. While provision of hygienic toilets for the public is the buzzword in our country lack of adequate public toilets and appalling state of existing ones is a reality that the city can't deny. Are the authorities listening to our voice? (B-15 Jyoti-Kalash Society, Jodhpur Tekra, Satellite, Ahmedabad - 380 015)

Significant increase in sales and earnings: LANXESS raises guidance for fiscal 2021 again

Ahmedabad, Following a good second quarter, LANXESS has again raised its guidance for the full year 2021. The specialty chemicals company now expects EBITDA pre-exceptionals to be between EUR 1 billion and EUR 1.05 billion. The guidance also reflects the acquisition of Emerald Kalama Chemical, which was completed in early August, with an EBITDA contribution of around EUR 35 million for the remainder of 2021. Previously, LANXESS expected earnings of between EUR 950 million and EUR 1 billion. LANXESS significantly increased EBITDA pre-exceptionals in the second quarter compared with the prior-year period, which was dominated by the pandemic; earnings were up by 23.7 percent from EUR 224 million to EUR 277 million. This positive development was driven by increasing demand from the automotive industry with the Engineering Materials segment benefiting in particular. The Consumer Protection segment also developed strongly, with earnings almost reaching the high level of the previous year. The Group managed to largely pass on the sharp increase in raw material prices in all segments by adjusting selling prices. Exchange rate effects, particularly from the U.S. dollar, high freight costs and significantly higher energy costs, especially in Germany, had a negative impact on earnings. The EBITDA margin pre-exceptionals was 15.1 percent, compared with 15.6 percent in the prior-year quarter. (1-7)
